

Act: Tracking your Progress

Now it is time to put your plans into action! Complete your activities for your peacemaking project using the resources from the Act: Tracking Your Progress Worksheet and use it to track your progress and successes!

No plan is perfect and if we waited until it was, we'd never get started. This is about learning as you go and taking small steps towards your desired future. Feel free to go back to your plan and budget and make changes.

- Complete the activities associated with your peacemaking project. Reach out to your facilitator, mentor, or other community members to help you!
- Use the Act: Tracking Your Progress Worksheet to track your progress.
- Take photos and video of your project. Post them on your project page, along with updates on your progress.

EXAMPLE:

Activity	What does success look like?	Completed? By when?	How did it go?
Get approval from school	Event is approved by school	September 10	It got approved
Find funding for activities	We find a way to fund the day	September 28	We received the funds from a local disability awareness organization
Print out invitations	All invitations are printed	October 1	We designed and printed invitations that we were happy with
Create materials to decorate day	We have a collection of materials to use for the awareness day	October 5	We created a big banner as well as lots of small details for the different tables and chairs
Give invitations out to guests	We use all the invitations we printed and people are attending	October 8	We didn't have any invitations left and most people were really happy to attend the day
Run disability awareness day	We have at least 200 attendees and at least half commit to change their behavior	October 11	We had 250 attendees, 200 of them answered the survey and committed to change their behavior
